Dr LOKE Wai Chiong

Wai Chiong is Deloitte's Southeast Asia Healthcare Sector Leader, and Partner in Risk Advisory. He is a healthcare innovator and leader, operator and investor. He started his career as a practising physician, went on to hospital management and policy leadership roles across public and private sectors, and subsequently found his calling in healthcare consulting.

Over the past 2 decades, he has served and advised governments, policy-makers, investors, providers and payers across multiple countries globally with a pan-Asia focus, delivering a broad range of advisory solutions to meet the unique needs of clients across the healthcare continuum - primary to tertiary care provision, private and public sectors, startups and MNCs, policymakers and investment firms.

He loves to connect the dots across this continuum, design new models and strategies, "move the big dots" for healthcare organizations and populations, and seek out the next disruption which will transform the delivery of care for the future.

Besides his medical qualifications, Dr Loke received his Double MBA from the University of California (Los Angeles) and the National University of Singapore.
